This project is to interface with a legacy point-of-sale system through serial and sends the transaction data to a web server which stores and provides an interface to view and search the transaction data. The POS uses Nucleus protocol. This was a consulting project that is no longer being used.